Investment Policy

The healthcare sector is global and accessing this market as a UK investor can be difficult. The Company offers an opportunity to gain exposure to pharmaceutical, biotechnology and related companies in the healthcare sector on a global scale. The Company invests in large companies with market capitalisations of over U.S.$10bn, smaller companies below that size, as well as unquoted companies. The portfolio ranges from large multi-national pharmaceutical companies with multiple products to unquoted emerging biotechnology companies. The Company's investment policy allows gearing, through borrowing, of up to 20% of net assets and a net exposure to derivative investments (excluding swaps) of up to 5% of the portfolio. Equity swaps may also be used, counterparty exposure here is limited to 12% of the portfolio at the time of acquisition. Unquoted securities will not exceed 10% of the portfolio at the time of acquisition.

Commentary

In May, the NAV per share total return was +1.0%, the share price total return was +0.4% and the MSCI World Health Care Index was +0.9%, on a net total return, sterling adjusted basis.

Equity markets rebounded in May, making a comeback after a difficult April, mostly led by tech stocks and a balancing act between corporate earnings and the rate speculation (if/when/how much). Healthcare lagged in this environment although the investor debate around the industry is very sub-sector dependent – hospitals, managed care, biotechnology, pharmaceuticals, and medical devices all possessing their own sets of pros and cons.

In May, the top contributor was Tenet Healthcare. Amidst lowered expectations into quarterly results, the hospital operator reported a very strong first quarter print, coming in well ahead of consensus estimates, in part due to additional Medicaid supplemental revenues in Michigan. The company raised their earnings outlook for the year and also announced a large acquisition. The stock rose on the announcements whilst the momentum continued into month-end with the share price rising >20% (local currency). Another notable contributor in May was the surgical robot maker, Intuitive Surgical. Increasing investor optimism for the new da Vinci 5 surgical robotic system launch drove the company's share price to all-time highs in the period.

Detractors of import in the month were varied. Overall, small-cap biotechnology stocks had the largest negative impact on performance, mostly due to idiosyncratic events across a half dozen companies that saw their share prices decline. The largest of which was Cytokinetics, a clinical stage "muscle" company that has been a rumored take-out candidate since late last year. However, the stock fell after the company announced an equity raise, essentially indicating that an M&A deal was not imminent. Another detractor of import was Evolent Health, a healthcare "value" service provider. The share price declined following the first quarter earnings report where elevated medical utilization negatively impacted profitability and forward visibility into cost trends, leading management to provide a second quarter guidance range that disappointed.

The pace of smid-cap biotech M&A continued to be brisk in May. Now with 22 deals in 22 weeks to start the year, deal flow remains elevated and ahead of last year's record pace. Whilst some seasonal impact – like summer holidays – may alter that trajectory, management teams of acquiring companies continue to talk up the need and desire for continued business development, save for a few exceptions.

DISCOUNT/PREMIUM CONTROL

It is the Board's policy to buy back the Company's shares if the share price discount to the net asset value per share exceeds 6% on an ongoing basis. Shares repurchased are held as treasury shares. Treasury shares can be sold back to the market at a later date at a premium to the cum income net asset value per share. Shareholders should note, however, that it remains very possible for the discount to be greater than 6% for extended periods of time particularly when sentiment towards the Company, the sector and to investment trusts generally remains poor. Any shares left in treasury are cancelled around the time of the Company's Annual General Meeting.

While buy backs may prove unable to prevent the discount from widening, they also enhance the net asset value per share for remaining shareholders and go some way to dampening discount volatility which can adversely affect investors' risk adjusted returns.

At times when there are unsatisfied buying orders for the Company's shares in the market, the Company has the ability to issue new shares or to re-issue treasury shares at a small premium to the cum income net asset value per share. This acts as an effective share price premium management tool.
