Commentary

In September the NAV per share was down 2.1%, the share price was down 1.9%, and the MSCI World Health Care Index was down 2.4%.

The top contributor in September was the Chinese biotechnology company, BeiGene. The company has a broad oncology pipeline with multiple “hot” targets. Share price momentum for the company has been building since July after the company inked a collaboration deal with the biotech giant, Celgene.

Another top contributor was Puma Biotechnology. The company launched a novel breast cancer drug, Nerlynx (neratinib), in August and the early reports on uptake were encouraging. Moreover, the company continues to be a rumored acquisition target, pushing the share price higher in the month. Finally, shares in Alnylam Pharmaceuticals, a Cambridge, Massachusetts-based biotechnology company, surged after the company reported positive data for their experimental medicine, patisiran. Patisiran was designed to treat a rare form of amyloidosis. The stock was up over 40% (in local currency) in the month.

In terms of detractors, medical device maker, Wright Medical was the largest, exhibiting a complete retrenchment of the strong share price rise observed in August. Notable hurricanes hit Texas and Florida, states with significantly large retirement communities that are heavy consumers of Wright Medical products (such as replacement joints). Cancellations of elective surgeries were commonplace due to the extreme weather and this prompted the company to lower full year guidance. Another detractor was the biotechnology company, Incyte. The company's share price stumbled after investor angst increased over pending updated data for the company's lead pipeline asset, epacadostat, for the treatment of a type of skin cancer.

Multiple pieces of news adversely impacted the share price for the biopharma company, Regeneron Pharmaceuticals. The stock had risen year-to-date on the approval and launch of Dupixent (dupilumab), the company's novel offering for the treatment of atopic dermatitis (AD) that is also under development for asthma. However, the news flow included positive competitor data in both AD and asthma. Additionally, the company released new phase III data for Dupixent in asthma that underwhelmed. Finally, some investors have the impression that the prospects for launch of Dupixent have reduced somewhat after a very strong launch.

There may be a difference between the prices at which you may purchase ("the offer price") or sell ("the bid price") a share on the stock market which is known as "bid-offer" or "dealing" spread. This is set by the market makers and varies from share to share. This spread typically averages 1-2% each way on the mid-market price (the price halfway between the bid and offer prices), and can fluctuate and at times be higher than average. The net asset value per share is calculated in accordance with the guidelines of the Association of Investment Companies. Net assets are stated inclusive of income received.
